IKE REAFFIRMS ARMS BAN PLANS

Hussein Reportedly Has Resigned

Crisis in Jordan Is Worse

By UNITED PRESS

Cairo radio reported without confirmation that Jordan's moderate Premier Hussein Khalidi resigned today in the face of opposition from leftist elements. The broadcast was heard in London.

The broadcast quoted Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency. The agency often is used as a propaganda mouthpiece by Egypt, which would like to see the uneasy Jordan situation kept in a state of turmoil.

The broadcast said Khalidi, who took office last week following the ouster of pro-Egyptian, pro-Soviet Premier Suleiman Nabulsi, handed King Hussein his resignation after consulting with his cabinet.

There was no immediate confirmation of the Cairo report from Amman, Jordan's capital, where correspondents are subject to strict censorship.

Many Demonstrations

But it was known that leftist party leaders consolidated their forces against Khalidi Monday night during a so-called "national guidance committee" conference in Nablus, Jordan. Nablus is a town west of the Jordan River and a center of pro-Egyptian sentiment.

Reports reaching Beirut, Lebanon, said demonstrations had been underway continuously in Jordan against the Khalidi government.

It appeared events were building up to a climax behind the military censorship imposed in Jordan.

A brief dispatch from Amman said police loyal to 22-year-old King Hussein seized batches of Communist leaflets exhorting the nation to "stand united" against an Anglo-American "conspiracy against the people."

The leaflets, said to be of Soviet origin, linked the Anglo-Americans with King Hussein and called on the people and army to unite against a conspiracy "which resulted in the firing of the national cabinet and the arrest and jailing of army officers."

Doctrine Attacked

Cairo Radio, which calls itself "the voice of the Arabs," cut through the Jordan censorship with slashing attacks against the Eisenhower Doctrine and the Baghdad Pact.

Coupled with the all-out propaganda war were open predictions in Cairo that street demonstrations Monday in Jordan might signal the beginning of a mass outburst against young King Hussein.

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser called an extraordinary cabinet session for Wednesday night to consider the situation and the Suez Canal. Nasser was believed ready to wash his hands of the canal negotiations with the United States and the United Nations.

In Cairo itself an anti-American campaign emerged into the open.

To Open Mine at New Eagle

A new coal mine will be opened in New Eagle by United States Steel Corp., it was announced today.

Development of the new mine, located in the vicinity of the New Eagle baseball park is expected to start the latter part of this year. The first coal will be mined in 1959.

The mine is expected to attain an annual capacity of 500,000 tons of mine-run coal by the end of 1959.

During the construction period initial employment will be limited, the company said.

To Replace Losses

The new pit, to be called Maple Creek Mine, will replace tonnage losses resulting from depletion in mines presently operating. The coal from the new mine will be used at the coke plant at the U. S Steel's Clairton Works, about eight miles down the Monongahela River.

The Maple Creek operation is part of a large reserve area of about 15,000 acres of Pittsburgh seam coal. As active mines are depleted, U. S. Steel said, other new mines in the area will be developed.

The Maple Creek plans call for installation of a personnel service shaft, refuse shaft, harbor facilities for barge loading, surface shop installations and a rock slope for handling supplies and equipment.

The new mine's coal tipple and coal wash building will be located on the present baseball diamond, located not far from the intersection of Routes 88 and 837.

H-BOMB TALK, NO DOUBT—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles chats in Washington with special Japanese envoy Masatoshi Matsushita, who is on his way home from talks in London in connection with Japan's effort to get Britain to cancel H-bomb tests. The tests are scheduled at Christmas island in the Pacific in May or June. Matsushita said he would recommend that his government appeal to the world court to halt such tests.

Discusses New Developments With Stassen

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP) — President Eisenhower sent Harold E. Stassen back to London disarmament talks today with reaffirmation of this country's belief that reduction in world arms must come a step at a time.

The President and his disarmament representative at the five-power talks in London talked for 75 minutes today. They explored the progress made to date toward some type of working agreement with Russia on a dependable start in the reduction of conventional or non-nuclear arms and the inauguration of an international inspection system.

Stassen left Augusta immediately after his early morning talk with the President and will pause in Washington for a brief afternoon meeting with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles before continuing on to London late in the day.

After the meeting, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty issued this statement:

"The President received from Mr. Stassen a review of the London talks. The President has followed these London discussions with interest. He had arranged with the Secretary of State to have Mr. Stassen come to Augusta to give him a personal report.

"The President encouraged the United States delegation to follow through thoroughly in the resumed negotiations which will start again in London on Wednesday.

Reaffirms U.S. Policy

"The President reaffirmed that United States policy is, as stated by the secretary of state in his speech of Monday, that:

"'We consider that controls and reduction of arms are possible, desirable, and in the last reckoning, indispensable. It is not essential that controls should encompass everything at once. In fact progress is likely to come by steps carefully measured and carefully taken.'

"Mr. Stassen will return this morning to Washington to confer again with the secretary of state prior to leaving for London later this afternoon from New York City."

Because the London talks have covered only about half of the agenda before the five powers, the President and Stassen both decided against any definite statement at this time and left all the talking to Hagerty.

The London talks, recessed for Easter but scheduled to resume Wednesday or Thursday, were a source of hope to the United States. For the first time in 11 years, the Russians seemed to be entertaining "serious" consideration of Western proposals for reducing the war potential of the big powers.

The participating countries in the U.N. disarmament subcommittee talks are the United States, Britain, France and Canada. The conference began March 18 and apparently will run into the early summer.

The three basic proposals before the conference:

—A reduction in non-nuclear

Monessen Girl Darts in Front Of Automobile

Claudia Larmi, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Osmo Larmi, of 813 Sixth St. Monessen, reportedly escaped injury yesterday afternoon when she darted into the path of a car near her home, police said today.

Mrs. Margaret Yoki, of 536 Alberts Dr., was traveling north on Sixth St. when the girl ran from behind a parked car and struck the right front fender of the Yoki machine.

The girl was examined by a local physician and, except for a minor finger scratch, escaped unhurt. However, she was to be given x-rays at Charleroi-Monessen Hospital today.

In a police report published yesterday it was erroneously stated that Gary Beck, 5, of 11 Washington Dr., was struck by a station wagon driven by Charles Beaumariage, of 14 Monessen Blvd. The report should have stated that the youngster ran into the side of the vehicle. The lad was not hurt.

Cost of Living Hits New All-time High

WASHINGTON (UP) — The government reported today that the cost of living reached a new record for the seventh straight month in March.

It brough automatic wage hikes of 2 to 3 cents an hour for 1,400,000 workers.

The government also reported that the purchasing power of the average factory worker's pay check declined in March for the second month in a row. The decline wiped out gains made in buying power since March, 1956.

The Bureau of Labor Statistic's price index rose two-tenths of one per cent between February and March to 118.9 per cent of average 1947-1949 prices. The index was 3.7 per cent higher than a year ago.

Means Pay Raise

The rise means a 3-cent hourly pay raise for nearly one million railroad workers on May 1 under semi-annual wage escalation provisions in their wage contracts. Another 400,000 workers scattered through the aircraft, electrical, and a variety of other industries also will get some pay raises under similar clauses.

The BLS reported that average weekly take-home pay — earnings after federal taxes — for factory workers declined by more than 30 cents between February and March. The decline, it said, reflected a drop in the average work week.

The average factory take-home pay in March for a worker with three dependents was $74.65 a week.

The decline in take-home pay and the rise in the cost of living combined to drop buying power of the average factory worker to slightly lower than a year ago. The BLS said it was the first time in more than 2½ years that the monthly buying power figure

U. S. Will Report on Suez, Dulles States

WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today the United States plans to report to the United Nations Security Council this week on its Suez Canal negotiations with Egypt.

Dulles told a news conference that the report may be presented Wednesday or Thursday.

He said it seems appropriate now that the canal is open, that there be greater public knowledge of the Suez problem. Therefore, he said it seems appropriate to the United States that an early report be made to the Security Council on the Suez Canal negotiations with Egypt.

Dulles emphasized that he believes it better to report on the negotiations than to take the case to the Security Council in a controversial way.

He said he is in the dark as to what Egypt's final canal terms will be. He said he did not know whether Egypt will publish these terms within the next 48 hours.

In a moderate tone Dulles said the United States does not have any objections if American ships go through the canal. But he said this government's policy of cautioning prudence in regard to such movements still stands.

He said American ships are under instructions to pay canal tolls to Egypt under protest.

Dulles did not say whether the report to the Security Council would end American-Egyptian efforts to work out a satisfactory Suez Canal operations plan.

When the subject came up about a week ago, officials said the Washington-Cairo talks would continue. But such talks might be at least called off temporarily if Egypt publishes its own plan for operating the canal.

Dulles also commented on these other international subjects:

—East-West Conference: The United States would welcome very much any move forward that

West Brownsville Policeman Upheld By High Court

Mell Deskin, a policeman in West Brownsville since 1950, yesterday was upheld by Pennsylvania's Supreme Court in his fight to keep his job on the basis of seniority.

Deskin had been hired on a two-year contract which the borough declined to renew in February, 1956, when it employed two other men as special policemen.

Deskin brought suit in Washington County court to order his reinstatement as a full-time officer under the state police tenure act.

West Brownsville was ordered by the lower court to reinstate Deskin, and the borough appealed to the state's highest tribunal, contending that the job Deskin held was not a regular one, and thus not covered by the tenure law.

Justice Herbert Cohen wrote the majority decision, holding that Deskin was a regular policeman and "secure in his tenure."

Driver's Head Cut In Donora Accident

Frank Broggi, 22, of East Monongahela, was traveling near 15th St. in Donora about 2:15 this morning when he lost control of his car and went over an embankment, it was reported by Donora police.

Broggi suffered lacerations of the scalp and bruises of the face. The car was a total loss, police said.

Eddie Cantor, Ida Collect $323 in Social Security

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Comedian Eddie Cantor and his wife Ida, who was wearing an expensive sable stole, appeared in a chauffeur-driven Cadillac Monday to collect a $323.40 Social Security check from the government.

The veteran singer-actor, one of the top money-makers in the entertainment world, said the check would be donated to the Surprise Lake Camp for Boys in New York where he went 53 years ago this summer and sang his first song.

Cantor received the check at the Hollywood branch of the Social Security Administration on the basis of his having reached the age of 65 last Jan. 31. The check covered Cantor's unemployment during February and March.

"My Social Security is just like any other insurance," Cantor said. "It pays off at certain times and is not a handout."

Although Social Security records are confidential, the comedian insisted in making the event public "so millions of people will know they are eligible for old age insurance payments, not based on need, but earned as an insured right."

Many Inspect Dial Building At Open House

A steady stream of visitors inspected the new Murray dial central office of the Bell Telephone Co. at Reed Ave. and Sixth St. in Monessen last night.

Open house at the exchange will also be held today and tomorrow from 6:30 to 9 p. m.

A special tour was conducted for Monessen High School students this morning and afternoon.

Open house is being held to permit visitors to observe the intricate workings of the equipment in speeding calls to distant telephones and also to meet many of the men and women who are responsible for the operation and maintenance of the office.

A number of special exhibits are on display.

The Murray central office, which introduced direct distance calling of calls and automatic message accounting in this area, was placed in service last Oct. 21.

L. Lawrence Buchanan, local manager, said individuals and organizations are invited to inspect the building.

Belle Vernon Fire

Belle Vernon and North Belle Vernon firemen answered a summons to the Boyd Barr Restaurant, 145 Main St., Belle Vernon, about 9:15 last night to check a defective chimney. No damage was reported.

Lias to 'Throw In the Sponge'; 'Doesn't Care'

WHEELING, W. Va. (UP)—William G. (Big Bill) Lias, rebuffed by the United States Supreme Court in his fight to avert paying a 2 million-dollar government tax bill, says he will "throw in the sponge."

"I don't care anymore," he said Monday night. "If the government wants to sell Wheeling Downs, let them go ahead. As far as I am concerned, it makes no difference how things work out."

Lias insisted the law was "on my side."

"The government lost its criminal case at the U. S. Federal District Court in Fairmont back in 1949 and I think the government's civil case should not have ended the way it did," he said.

"But I realize the end of the line has come and the only thing I can do is throw in the sponge."

In another issue concerning the case, Lias's four-story apartment building was sold at public auction here Monday. It had been ordered placed on the block by Federal Judge Harry E. Watkins.

Dr. A. J. Antelis, Powhatan, Ohio, submitted the high big of $33,500, in outbidding 13 others. Dr. Antelis, a medical clinic operator, said he plans to remodel the apartment building for medical offices.

Lias and his family now reside there in a second floor apartment.

Two Pittsburgh Men Are Killed

BUTLER, Pa. (UP)—Two Pittsburgh men were killed today when their automobile slammed broadside into a gasoline tanker truck on Route 8 near here.

The victims were identified as Robert S. Struble, 45, of Pleasant Hills, and Wallace S. Coulter, 60, William Harrington, Roosevelt, Pa., truck driver, said the automobile was passing a line of cars going north and suddenly spun around as it neared his vehicle. He said it appeared as if the sedan's brakes locked.

Harrington suffered only a bruised knee in the crash. The truck was owned by Pittsburgh Tankers, Inc., of Oil City, Pa.

The accident occurred at 10 a.m. about 7½ miles south of Butler.

Charleroi Man Is Struck by Auto

Uttech suffered lacerations of the scalp and bruises of the elbows. He is in good condition, according to hospital reports.

The driver of the car was Arnold Orsatini, of 408 Oakland Ave., Charleroi.

Free Enterprise In Danger Warns Senator Knowland

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Sen. William F. Knowland (R- Calif.) has warned that this nation's free enterprise system "will ultimately be destroyed" unless the current high rate of federal taxation is curtailed.

Knowland told some 2,400 persons at a $100-a-plate Republican campaign fund - raising dinner Monday night the solution to the tax problem could only be found in the halting of increased federal expenditures.

"A system under which the federal government takes personal income at rates varying from 20 to 91 per cent and corporate income at a 52 per cent rate is simply too burdensome," the Senate minority leader said.

"It will ultimately destroy our free enterprise system," Knowland declared, adding that if federal expenditures had been held to the 1955 level "we would now face the pleasant prospect of a budget surplus of almost nine billion dollars in the coming fiscal year."

Ike to Enter War on Union Racketeering

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—President Eisenhower summoned Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell today to a conference here Thursday on legislation the administration may recommend to protect union funds from racketeering.

James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, said the President and the cabinet member would consider legislation for recommendation to this session of Congress.

Hagerty did not know whether this would involve a special presidential message to the House and Senate.

Although the administration has recommended legislation in the past to protect union health and welfare funds, the forthcoming talks between the President and Mitchell were an outgrowth of the current investigation of the special Senate committee on labor racketeering.

Hagerty said Mitchell and the President would discuss actions of possible actions and possible legislation that the administration could recommend to the Congress in this field."

Mitchell will be in New York Wednesday and take off for Augusta from the Marine terminal at LaGuardia Field at 10:15 p.m. He will meet with the President at the Augusta National Golf Club at 8:30 a.m. Thursday and hold a news conference here shortly after his talk with the Chief Executive.

Particularly since the Senate inquiry into the operations of Dave Beck and the Teamsters' Union, the administration has been exploring the possibility of a new legislative approach to the matter of protecting union funds from mishanding.

Uncuttable Budget to Start at 17 Billions

WASHINGTON (UP)—The federal budget for next year would be $71,168,000,000 even if Congress decided to call the whole thing off and turned all functions of government back to the states.

That is the inescapable portion of President Eisenhower's record peacetime budget of $71,300,000,000 for fiscal 1958. Cut as it may, Congress couldn't possibly get below that figure because such expenditures are fixed by law.

The biggest item in the uncuttable budget is $7,360,000,000 for interest on the huge national debt of nearly 275 billion dollars. A dictatorship like the Soviet Union can declare a moratorium on public debt payments. But a similar move by the United States would signal the collapse of the free enterprise system.

The second largest budget item fixed by law is $4,105,000,000 for pensions, compensation of other benefits for 3,606,000 veterans or their dependents or survivors — one out of every 47 Americans. There is no end in sight for this group of fixed expenditures.

Other major items that can't be cut without changing basic laws include $2,201,000,000 for farm price supports, $1,679,000,000 for public assistance grants, one billion dollars for the soil bank program, nearly 500 million dollars for other farm programs, and 310 million dollars for unemployment compensation grants to the states.

Congress could cut these items only by revising or repealing laws calling for the various expenditures. This is hardly likely.

Congress can reduce or eliminate any other item in the record budget. But, with the world situation in its present precarious state, it still would come up with a whopping figure.

Of the approximately 54 billion dollars left for congressional parring, by far the biggest share—$43,335,000,000—is for national security programs.

With the uncuttable and defense items out of the way, Congress has about 11 billion dollars worth of appropriations to work on. But even most of these are held to pare.

Bus Lines Are Granted Okay To Up Fares

HARRISBURG (UP) — Two western Pennsylvania bus lines have been authorized by the Public Utility Commission to increase fares five cents for transportation between Clairton, McKeesport, Pleasant Hills, Elizabeth and Monongahela.

Plans also call for the two firms —the Mon Valley Bus Co. and Noble J. Dick Lines—to increase school fares from three tokens for 25 cents to three tokens for 35 cents.

Mon Valley estimated the fare revision would increase its annual revenues by $33,300 while the other company said it would produce an additional $23,300. Both firms said they operated at a loss last year.

The fare increases will become effective April 29, the commission said.

GOP Leader Is Opposed to Any Assembly Recess

HARRISBURG (UP) — A House Republican leader today voiced sharp opposition to a proposal for a "stand-by" recess of the General Assembly.

House Speaker W. Stuart Helm (R-Armstrong) said he could see "no reason" for the Republican majority in the House and Senate not to adjourn the current session as planned on May 31.

"I can see no reason to expend funds to keep all those Assembly employes on the payroll during a stand-by recess while we can get the job done here and now," Helm said. "If the governor wants to call us back in a special session next spring, then that's his business and he'll have to answer for it."

Helm flatly contradicted Sen. Albert R. Pechan (Armstrong), Senate GOP Whip, who urged an indefinite recess after May 31 to hold a checkmate over Gov. George M. Leader and any possible gubernatorial move to call a special session next year.

Helm and Sen. M. Harvey Taylor (R-Dauphin), Senate president pro tempore, were scheduled to confer with Leader to set a new date for a meeting with legislative leaders to hear another plea for passage of at least a portion of the administration's program. The leaders were to gather with Leader tomorrow at the Executive Mansion but the Republicans asked for a postponement. The bulk of the governor's 200-bill program is stranded in GOP dominated committees.

Adjournment Drive

Lawmakers returned to open a concerted GOP adjournment drive following a recess since April 10. If the Republican timetable holds up it would be the earliest adjournment date in eight years, although Democratic leaders contend the session should continue until July to act on the bulk of Leader's program.

Helm said the Republicans would confer on "priority" legislation for the remaining six-weeks of the session. He said the GOP leaders would "sit down and listen" to Leader review his program but indicated they would not be receptive to any legislation entailing additional expenditures or "drastic" revision of the state government.

Joint House - Senate appropriations committee hearings on the Highways and Public Instruction departments also will be held this week, concluding next Monday with the Welfare Department. Completion of the hearings will clear the decks for introduction of the General Fund budget for operating the state government.

Moscow might like to make on disarmament, easing control over the satellites, and reunification of Germany. American reaction to any proposal for a new East-West meeting would depend on what Russia is prepared to do about these key issues. This government however, would not be interested in a meeting designed only for propaganda.

—U.S. Newsmen To Red China: Dulles said he is ready to accept a pool arrangement whereby a limited number of U.S. reporters would go to Red China. But so far, he said, no satisfactory plan has been worked out and proposed by American press executives.

—Disarmament: The current London disarmament talks do not require that U.S. Representative Harold E. Stassen be given new instructions. While the negotiations with Russia seem more serious than previously, the big question is what new instructions the Soviet delegate brings back to London from Moscow. Dulles said there could be disarmament developments which would require new American instructions, but this is not required now.

armaments. The plan on the conference table in London, yet to be agreed upon, would call for a 10 per cent reduction in non-nuclear arms this year, 15 per cent in the following year. Non-nuclear arms would include fighting naval surface craft, submarines, tanks, aircraft and artillery. With such a reduction in mechanical arms obviously would come a reduction in military manpower.

—On the nuclear side, a cut-off date for producing weapons powered by fissionable material. This would include atomic and hydrogen bombs. The United States would be willing to institute an inspection system by March 1, 1958, and agree to a cut-off in weapons production 30 days later. If an inspection system is set up for some later date, this country is willing to follow through on a cut-off date 30 days later.

—The President's "Open Skies" theory of aerial inspection of military installations of Russia and the Western Allies was first made in Geneva in July, 1955. His thought then was on a country-wide basis, letting planes from both big powers map opposing countries from the air.

American authorities said today that eventually this country would want both ground and air inspection, but the United States would be willing to begin with limited air inspection.

Jordan

The Cairo press supported charges that the Jordan crisis was an American-backed plot to bring Jordan into the Eisenhower Doctrine.

Israel appeared to be adopting a hands off policy in the power struggle now raging for and in Jordan. There was concern about the future of the Gulf of Aqaba and Arab threats to shipping, but a Jerusalem dispatch said the government studied its own intelligence reports and decided no action was necessary at this time.

Signs Point to Quick End to Pardons Probe

HARRISBURG (UP)—All signs pointed today to a quick windup of the legislative investigation of the state Pardons Board when the six-man House-Senate committee resumes its hearings Thursday.

Rep. Edwin W. Tompkins (R-Cameron), committee chairman, said the group will hear testimony Thursday from former Pardons Board secretary Joseph Nissley, then will probably conclude the hearings to begin work on its report to the General Assembly which is due by May 11.

The committee, which set out to track down charges of political influence in board actions, is winding up its inquiry with an effort to find suggestions for corrective legislation to include in the report.

Suggestions made so far were few, but broad in scope—ranging from a recommendation to eliminate the board entirely, made by Delaware County Judge Arthur P. Bretherick, to an appeal for more funds for administrative aid, made by members of the present board.

At the committee hearing Monday, however, several prison officials defended the board setup as a vital part of the state's rehabilitation program for criminals.

Arthur T. Prasse, state commissioner of corrections, told the committee that elimination of the possibility of executive clemency for prisoners "would take all the hope many of them have."

Praises Board

Prasse, appointed by former Gov. John S. Fine in 1953, told the investigators that he suspected no political influence in board actions and said he felt that "appropriate weight" was given by the board to the Bureau of Corrections recommendations in clemency appeal cases.

Asked if he could suggest any improving legislation Prasse said: "I don't know anyway we can better the program by writing new laws. It is a matter of enforcing the laws we have now."

Prasse's view was supported by Parole Board statistician William C. Jacks, ho said the board is "a very necessary part of the treatment program for prisoners."

"We have over 7,500 prisoners in state-owned institutions, over 500 of which are serving life imprisonment sentences," Jacks said. "There is no release for these men except through executive clemency."

Jacks said the prison training and rehabilitation programs count on the cooperation of prisoners for success, and that "it is almost impossible to set up a program if there isn't somewhere a hope of release."

Frogs on the Way Out in England

LONDON (UP)—Frogs may become extinct in England within the next 50 years because of the encroachment of civilization, zoologist Alfred Leutscher predicted today.

Leutscher, founder of the British Herpetological Society, blamed the disappearance of frogs on modern drainage systems, in which they cannot live, and the diminishing number of ponds that have been used for centuries as spawning grounds.

showed no increase over the previous year.

BLS reported that food prices declined four-tenths of one per cent in March, mainly for eggs and pork. Increases for all other major groups of goods and services more than offset the decline.

Price increases were reported for rents, dry cleaning and laundry services, water rates, mortgage interest rates, and home maintenance cost; clothing, used cars, gasoline and motor oil, medical care, haircuts, toiletries, movie admissions, newspapers, and television sets.

H. E. Riley, chief of the BLS price division, said the outlook for April is for further increases in major groups of goods and services, including food.

He refused to predict what might lie ahead beyond April.

Fayette County Fights to Get Route 40 Work

The Fayette County Development Council hasn't given up on the proposal to include U. S. Route 40 in the new federal interstate highway system.

Stewart G. Neel, executive vice president of the council, said yesterday a conference has been arranggd in Harrisburg next Monday with Joseph J. Lawler, state secretary of highways, in an effort to prevent a part of U. S. 40 from being relegated to secondary road status.

Attending this conference in addition to the state secretary and Neel will be E. L. Sittler, Jr., president of the council; I. N. Hagan, chairman of the council's highway committee, and Edward Heiselberg, executive director of the Fayette County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Chairman Hagan said it appears that part of U. S. 40 between Hancock, Md., through Uniontown to Washington, Pa., will not be included in the 40,000-mile federal interstate road system, Hagan adds:

"The Fayette County Development, representing the present and future economic interests of Fayette County, cannot accept this decision as being a sound one. Route 40 is a heavily-traveled coast-to-coast highway.

"Along the way it serves such Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento and Oakland, Calif. It is one of the main access roads from midwestern states to Washington, D. C. No part of Route 40 should be eliminated from the federal interstate highway system.

"Fayette County is vitally concerned with Route 40. Its economy will be adversely affected by the diversion of traffic to the Pennsylvania Turnpike; and, conversely, its economy will receive a tremendous boost if all of Route 40 is included in the interstate highway system."

"The state of Maryland," Hagan said, "has officially requested that Route 40 from Baltimore to the Maryland-Pennsylvania state line be included in the interstate system. This means that Maryland is willing to put up its share of the money to construct another 70 miles of Route 40, from Hancock west to the Maryland-Pennsylvania state line. Route 40 is their only east-west highway. Maryland, too, strongly objects to the diversion of traffic from Hancock north to the Pennsylvania Turnpike."

The Fayette County Development Council also claims a new Route 40, particularly in Fayette County, will result in a savings in life and property—pointing out that two of the places in Pennsylvania where runaway trucks have taken their heaviest toll are Summit Mountain and Brownsville Hill, both in Fayette County on Route 40.

It is also pointed out that Pennsylvania is planning improvements to Route 40 in Fayette County—including Summit Mountain and the Brownsville Bridge and approaches. Announced estimates of cost are about 20 million dollars.

If this section of Route 40 were placed in the federal interstate system, money would be available for this construction from the federal government on a 90-10 ratio, which would provide up to 180 million dollars in matching funds.

The Fayette County Development Council claims that 200 hundred million dollars should much more than cover the cost of the 68-mile section of Route 40 in Pennsylvania, from the Maryland state line to Washington, Pa.

Monessen VFW Members Will Parade Saturday

Members of the Allison-Lescanac Post 1190, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will participate in the annual Westmoreland County Loyalty Day Parade to be held in Greensburg on Saturday.

The parade will be held at 4 p. m. under the auspices of the county councils of the VFW and the American Legion.

Loyalty Day was originated by VFW members as a counter-demonstration to the annual May Day mass meetings in Communist countries.

A big parade has been planned by the county committee with many units being invited from the tri-county area.

Taking part from Post 1190 will be some 60 uniformed members and a float.

Fayette Judges Study Petition

A petition filed with the Fayette County courts, accusing Jack L. Cochrane, warden of the Fayette County Jail, with extortion in connection with the release of a prisoner, has been taken under advisement by the three jurists.

Studying the petition are President Judge W. Russell Carr, Judge S. John Morrow and Judge Eustace H. Bane, who is president of the county prison board.

The petition was submitted last Friday by Wendell Ford, of Uniontown, who alleges $30 was delivered to the warden and Ford was then promptly released from jail.

Bus Firm Asks Fare Increase

The Trenk and Trenk Bus Lines, Belle Vernon, today proposed a five cent cash fare increase effective May 26 for transporting Pittsburgh Steel Co. workers in the Fayette City, Brownstown and Allenport areas.

The company asked the Public Utility Commission for authority to raise the bus fare from 15 to 20 cents and increase the charge for 9-trip ticket books from $2.50 to $3.25.

The bus line said the proposal would return an estimated $1,500 more annual revenue to meet higher operating costs.

The PUC took the rate proposal under advisement.

Trapped Miners Are Freed from Shaft

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (UP) — Two miners, trapped while working at the bottom of an anthracite mine 1,500 feet underground, were rescued Monday after a perilous 12 hour wait.

The rescued men, Walter Olshefski, 41, of Inman Park, a section boss, and Earl Hill, 33, of Hunlock Creek, were examined by a company physician and reported in good condition. They were taken to Wilkes-Barre General Hospital for a routine checkup.

Two U. S. Fliers Land Planes at Atomic Station

LONDON (UP — Two U. S. Air Force fliers plopped their jet trainer down in the middle of Britain's top secret Harwell atomic energy research station Monday night, not realizing they just missed five 70-foot nuclear reactors.

An Air Force spokesman said the fliers lost radio contact with their home base at Manston and set down in darkness on the first airstrip they sighted.

It turned out to be the abandoned runway at Harwell, a wartime RAF base which is now headquarters of British atomic research.

While government security patrols closed in on the T-33 trainer, one of its occupants calmly hiked up to a police checkpoint on Harwell's inner security fence and asked 'how far am I from London?"

Officials said the T-33 burst its tires in the emergency landing but otherwise there was no mishap.

If the plane had overshot the runway it could have crashed into one of the powerful atomic reactors just across the inner fence from the runway's end.

Lias Appeal Rejected

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Supreme Court has let stand a two million dollar tax judgment against West Virginia racing tycoon William (Big Bill) Lias.

The high court in a brief order Monday refused to examine Lias' appeal from a Tax Court ruling that he and his wife owed two million dollars to the government in back income tax and penalties.

Income tax payments involved are for the years 1942 to 1948. The penalties come to $725,681.

A Justice Department spokesman said the government's next step would be to ask the Federal District Court at Wheeling, W.Va., to order the sale of Lias' property, including his race track holdings, to meet the judgment.

Lias, a former owner of the Wheeling Downs race track, was ordered deported to Greece in 1955. The order was based on grounds that he did not have proper documents when he re-entered the United States after a trip to Canada in 1948.

He has challenged the deportation order in a Federal Court suit. He contends he was born in Wheeling, W.Va., and is therefore an American citizen.

The high court also:

—Let stand an Appeals Court ruling that Eastern Air Lines was liable for damages in a 1949 Eastern airliner crash here that took 55 lives. Individual claims against Eastern may now be settled.

—Refused to reconsider its March 11 ruling ordering the United Auto Workers to stand trial on charges of violating the Taft-Hartley's ban on electioneering with general union funds.

—Upheld, 7-1, a tax deficiency of $384,059 against the Automobile Club of Michigan for 1943 and 1944.

—Denied a hearing to movie director Adrian Scott who sought damages against RKO Radio Pictures for firing him after he refused to answer questions in 1947 by the House Committee on un-American Activities. Scott, one of the original "Hollywood Ten," served about 10 months for contempt of Congress.

Employers and Unions Not All the Same

THE UGLY disclosures concerning the Teamsters Union have served, we should hope, to develop on the part of wage earners in all industries a more judicious attitude concerning their own unions and the people who run them.

Many unions have been thriving on the idea that the employer is the wage earner's worst enemy and the union leader his best friend. The worker has been encouragd to mistrust — even hate — his employer, but he has been taught never to question the union leader for fear of being a traitor to a sacred cause.

This concept has always been a myth, of course. For while there are cold, unfeeling, brutal and callous employers, there are also some employers who are honestly concerned about the welfare of their employes, who try earnestly and successfully to have them share in the fruits of their labor.

By the same token, there are some union leaders, many of them in fact, who are wholly dedicated to the service of their membership and who strive effectively to represent them adequately and honestly. But there are also some union leaders who, as we have been reading in the most distressing detail, don't give two hoots in the bad place for their members, who are as selfish and callous as any employer ever thought of being and who deserve, not the unquestioning loyalty of the wage earner, but his complete contempt.

NOW THAT he is able to see the picture in somewhat better perspective, what should be the attitude of the wage earner?

Well, it seems to us that he might, first of all, try to think well of his employer. For even though his employer may be a large corporation, the employer's progress and well-being are important to the employe and therefore deserving of his loyalty and cooperation.

The employe, if he tries, can come to know in his own mind whether his employer is the kind who deserves loyalty and cooperation. Fairness and justice and sincere interest are not virtues which can be readily disguised.

Then when the employe knows his employer is being square and fair with him and with his fellow workers, he should not hesitate to put in their proper places those union leaders who preach the "hate-the-boss" doctrine in his plant. He will know such leaders are nothing but professional fakers who think they have to promote strife to keep their jobs.

MOREOVER, this better perspective should encourage more employers to be better employers. No good employer has to be clubbed into dealing fairly with his employes. Nor should the good employer be denied the loyalty and cooperation of his employes because some bad employer, who deals with the same union, has to be clubbed into treating his people like human beings.

What we are trying to say in all this is that labor-management relations should leave more room for the normal human instincts, which include kindness, fair play, sincerity and loyalty. We need less of the stereotyped warfare which has put employers, good and bad, on one side and employes and unions, good and bad, on the other.

Undoubtedly there is going to continue to be a place for aggressively directed union activity in American industry for the indefinite future. No sensible person can think otherwise.

But how many men, one wonders, were forced into the Teamsters Union on the theory that their employers couldn't be trusted to deal honestly with them? And that the Teamsters Union would be their friend, whereas the employer was their congenital enemy?

Many a truck driver knows better now. And his knowledge should help both him and his employer to put their relations on a sounder basis, more in keeping with their mutual interests.

A Bully's Threats

THE RULERS of the Soviet Union have been very busy in recent weeks sending notes very friendly notes to almost all their close neighbors — those which they have not already swallowed behind the Iron Curtain.

These notes have warned such countries as Norway, Sweden and Denmark not to allow guided missile bases to be established on their territory. If they do, says Moscow, all sorts of terrible threats may happen to them.

Whatever effect the Soviets have intended these notes to have, they have not resulted in any obvious panic. Moscow has learned what Secretary Dulles said only yesterday, "Collective measures are here to stay."

Free men have learned some lessons in this terrible century. And perhaps the greatest lesson of all is that, when a conquering bully is abroad in the world, it is folly to give way before it. Hitler and Stalin both succeeded for a while in some brave peoples be[illegible]

Probe May Involve A Senator

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Their Democratic colleagues don't know it, but Republican members of the Senate Rackets Committee are trying to cook up an investigation they hope will embarrass the lone Senator who belongs to the A.F. of L. — Pat McNamara of Michigan, Democrat.

Mr. Pearson

It's not supposed to be known, but three GOP members — Irving Ives of New York, Barry Goldwater of Arizona, and Karl Mundt of South Dakota — held a secret strategy huddle last week in Ives' office. Also attending were Goldwater's assistant, Dean Burch, and Ives' son and assistant, George Ives.

They agreed to urge chairman John McClellan, Arkansas Democrat, to investigate labor racketeering in Michigan. To persuade him, they will offer evidence that certain Detroit unions have made a racket of selling work permits to non-union members.

What they don't plan to tell McClellan is that Senator McNamara's former union, Pipefitters Local 636, is one of the alleged violators. McNamara, a Democrat, was president of the local until he ran for the Senate in 1954.

By going into Michigan, the Republicans hope to bring out various charges that might embarrass McNamara, who is also a member of the Senate Rackets Committee. He was mixed up in a union building controversy, for example, that could be revived. His local defaulted on a $150,000 contract to buy a building that the former owner had purchased for only $50,000 three years earlier. The Pipefitters lost $62,500 on the deal, and nine union members are still demanding an accounting.

Sen. Potter Sees Ammunition

One of the nine, Demler Mathews, is responsible for arousing Republican interest in McNamara's union. He wrote to Sen. Charlie Potter, Michigan Republican, summing up his grievances against McNamara and the Pipefitters.

Potter is running for re-election next year. As a Republican, he faces a tough fight in a state where Gov. Mennen "Soapy" Williams has built up a Democratic organization which has consistently defeated Republicans and which has strong labor support.

Potter says the obvious possibility of knocking a hole in Michigan labor by airing Mathews' charges, so arranged for his attorney to meet with the GOP members of McClellan's Rackets Committee. Potter, himself, did not attend the meeting.

At the meeting, Senator Ives pointed out that it is against the Senate's unwritten rules to investigate a fellow senator. It was agreed therefore, to request a broad investigation into labor racketeering in Michigan. The charges against McNamara would then come out in the course of the investigation, Ives' son, George, suggested.

The Republicans agreed to go to Chairman McClellan with the charges about the work-permit racket. Some unions allegedly are charging $5 a month for work permits. The permits must be purchased in cash, and the worker must surrender his receipt each month to get another permit.

This investigation, the GOP trio hope, will lead the Pipefitters, their colleague, Senator McNamara and the end of Gov. Williams' Democratic power in Michigan.

Take Two Aspirins!

An organized letter-writing campaign by doctors, against the proposed federal school-construction program, has finally driven Rep. Lee Metcalf (D., Mont.) to exasperation.

Fed up with "canned" letters, Metcalf got particularly sore after repeatedly reading the doctors' arguments about the alleged unconstitutionality of the school proposals.

Metcalf, a former associate justice of the Montana Supreme Court, wrote back to one:

"I appreciate the usual opinion of a doctor, that federal aid to education is unconstitutional.

"My medical opinion as a lawyer, a former associate justice of the Supreme Court of Montana and a member of the House committee which has had this matter up for four years, is that you should take two aspirins for the headache you are getting, worrying about the constitutionality of a program which predates our Constitution."

Little One That Got Away

Today and Tomorrow—

Presidential Disability

By WALTER LIPPMANN

TUNIS — I am writing this article on a plane from Palermo to Tunis, and having lost touch for the time being with immediate events, I have been thinking about one of our own domestic problems, what to do about a disabled President.

There are really two schools of thought on the problem. The one holds that if a President is disabled, there should be a clear and accepted way by which the Vice President can assume the power but not the office of President. If the President recovers, the Vice-President steps down again.

Mr. Lippmann

The other school holds that as long as the President is alive, it can cause only confusion and trouble if there are two Presidents — the elected President who holds the office and the Vice-President who exercises his power.

Staff Carried On

As Mr. Joseph C. Harsch has explained recently, those who take the second view believe that when the President is disabled, his powers can most faithfully be exercised by a kind of informal regency consisting of the senior members of his own cabinet and of his White House staff. This was in fact what happened when Woodrow Wilson was ill and it happened again when President Eisenhower was ill.

In dealing with this problem the first thing we have to realize is that there is no such thing, indeed that there can be no such thing, as a happy and entirely satisfactory solution. It is a calamity when the President becomes disabled, and no statue or constitutional amendment can do more than to mitigate some of the consequences.

But on the whole the best of the solutions is, it seems to me, the one proposed by President Eisenhower. This rests on two basic principles. One is that the President himself should be the judge of his own disability.

The other principle is that while the President is alive, the Vice-President shall not assume the office of President, and shall exercise the powers of the office subject to the President's unquestioned right to take back the powers if he feels able to do so.

This seems to me to avoid any suggestion that some kind of tribunal or commission of eminent men should sit in judgment on the President's ability to exercise his power. It is better to leave it to the President himself to judge whether he feels well enough to administer his office, and in case he is unconscious, to have the cabinet act in his behalf.

About Mental Illness

It is possible, of course, to imagine a condition of affairs which would not be met by this solution. The most obvious example which comes to mind would be the case of a President who gradually became mentally incompetent without realizing the fact or being willing to recognize it. My own view of this possibility is that as we cannot foresee and prepare for all eventualities, it is the part of wisdom to say that if and when such a situation arises, the remedy should be worked out by those who know all the facts of so unusual and so peculiar a situation.

If we are going to amend the Constitution to deal with this problem, we ought at least to consider restoring what was almost surely the original intent of the founders. This was, so I have always understood, that if the Vice-President succeeds, it shall be not for the remainder of the President's four-year term but only until in the normal course of things new elections can be held. This would be at mid-term if the President died or resigned in the first two years. It would be at the regular presidential election time if he resigned or died in the last two years.

The value of such a reform would be that it would reduce to a minimum the time during which a man, never in fact elected to be President, exercised the powers of that high office.

Panama Reminds U. S. Of Canal Zone Rule

By CHARLES M. McCANN

President Ernesto de la Guardia of Panama has just reminded the United States that his country claims sovereignty over the Panama Canal Zone.

He has said also that the question of seeking nationalization of the canal zone is not a public issue in Panama at this time.

Mr. McCann

He and other Panamanians have intimated that the United States may be asked before long to increase substantially the revenue which Panama gets from the canal — a rental fee of $1,930,000 a year.

Canal revenues for the fiscal year ended last June 30 totalled $40,856,995. Expenses, including depreciation, totalled $16,138,277, leaving a balance of $21,718,718.

Canal's Status Mentioned

La Guardia's statement that nationalization is not an issue right now may be taken to mean that if there happened to be a change of government in Panama, the issue could become a live one.

The status of the canal has been mentioned frequently ever since Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser seized control of the Suez Canal.

Russia, among other countries, has expressed the conviction that the canal ought to be internationalized.

The British Labor Party issued a pamphlet last Wednesday suggesting that the United Nations be given "supervisory rights" over the Panama Canal, the English Channel, the Strait of Gibraltar and other great international waterways.

The question of Panama Canal sovereignty has been in dispute ever since Panama became a republic in 1903 after revolting against Colombia.

Panama's position, as reasserted by de la Guardia in a questionnaire last week, is that the United States was merely granted "jurisdictional" rights to construct, maintain, operate and protect the canal.

U.S. Position Stated

The position of the United States was defined by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in a press conference last August.

As Dulles put it, the United States possesses all the right it would have if the canal zone were American territory and Panama has no right to exercise any "sovereign rights, power or authority."

Until 1903 Panama was a province of Colombia. When the revolution broke out, Colombia sent troops to crush it.

Forty-seven United States Marines, landing from the cruiser Nashville, stopped the Colombians. President Theodore Roosevelt, in authorizing that action, cited a United States-Colombian treaty of 1846, which gave the United States the right of transit across the Isthmus of Panama. He held that under the treaty the United States undertook to keep the Isthmus open, and that a civil war would close it.

It happened that the Panama revolution broke out shortly after the Colombian Senate refused to ratify a treaty providing for construction of the canal.

Roosevelt has been accused ever since of fomenting the revolution. There is no evidence that he did so. But there was also criticism of what some people called his indecent haste in recognizing Panama.

Roosevelt once said also of the canal: "I took it." It is generally forgotten that when a French engineer who heard him claimed to have engineered the revolt, Roosevelt added that he took it "when it was handed to me on a silver platter."

The United States later paid Colombia $5 million in settlement for recognizing its canal rights.

Tells Remarkable Story of Life

By UNITED PRESS

"I was conceived in the Blue Grotto at Capri in June 1906." Joan Grant says briskly at the outset of her autobiography, "Far Memory" (Harper).

She goes on to explain that this event, otherwise "so exceedingly commonplace," occurred under just those circumstances because the Italian authorities believed her perfectly proper parents to be royalty, traveling incognito.

This is a suitable beginning for Mrs. Grant's sparkling, outspoken account of what she calls "my first 30 years in the 20th century"— a remarkable life, lived under interesting circumstances.

Mrs. Grant has done a number of things that most people only dream of — skiing in Switzerland, playing championship golf, digging for antiquities in the Iraqi desert — and her own dreams pass human understanding.

The Woman's View—

Diana Barrymore to Attempt New Career

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Diana Barrymore, a girl for whom life mixed plenty of bitter with the glitter, says she will resume her acting career this summer.

Behind this statement of plans lies a back-from-the-depths story of a girl who was born with just about everything — looks, name, breeding, wealth, talent and opportunity — and in her own words "seems to have done her best to throw it away."

Gay Pauley

"That Diana," she said, "has been a bloody fool."

But the 36-year-old daughter of the late actor John Barrymore says life is looking up. "I'm a happy gal," she said, in an interview. "I used to run away from things. I don't anymore."

Miss Barrymore, whose mother was Michael Strange, the writer, said in retrospect, it seems she has lived three lives.

One was as a girl brought up in surroundings of wealth and the social register; another, as a promising actress trying to live up to a family name; and the third, which would need "the combined talents of a Tennessee Williams and Dostoevski to explain, the wisdom and compassion of St. Augustine to forgive."

Publishes Biography

"Too much, too soon," her just-published biography written with Gerold Frank, is a candid account of the three lives. It recites the details of her turning to alcohol, of three marriages, many affairs and a suicide attempt.

Why such a frank story, I asked her.

"There's no message . . . I did not set out to point a moral," she said. "But writing it has been a cleansing process . . . it's like psychiatry in a way. And if I hadn't had the book to work on when Bob died (Bob Wilcox, her third husband) I don't know what would have happened to me.

"No, I'm not sorry I told all. In writing I became so objective —I began to think of me as another person—that if you read some parts back to me now, I'd probably blush pink."

I asked whether she had whipped the alcohol problem.

She bristled, and answered: "That is nobody's business but mine and my psychiatrist's. I won't discuss husbands either . . . there are some things I just won't talk about."

Opening In London

Miss Barrymore who plans to open in an American play in London this summer, said she has been visiting a psychiatrist for more than four months—"she tells me, 'for God's sake, Diana, you think more negatively than anybody I know.'

"Well, I'm trying to think positively."

What might happen if the play flopped? "I don't think there ever can be as many dark moments again," she said.

"A lot of people are rooting for me. When you've been low and are struggling to get back, somebody's always ready with a helping hand. It's a great American trait."

"Only Diana" is to blame for the course her life took, she said.

"I did it myself . . . oh, a lot of people didn't help any.

"I'm proud of the name Barrymore, but if I had been born Susie Smith instead, things would have been different . . . much different."

County Grid Loop May Have 11 Teams

That proposed new Westmoreland County Class A football conference may wind up with no less than 11 teams. Already in the fold are eight schools — Rostraver, Hurst, Ramsay, North Huntingdon, Derry, Vandergrift, Ligonier and Scottdale. Reportedly interested are Bellmar, Laurel Valley and Sewickley . . . The Bellmare interest is surprising. Raymond Barker, the school's principal, was one of the key figures in the recent move to organize Fayette County schools into a grid conference. However that league has run into some scheduling problems. It seems several of the members simply refuse to play German Twp. And that attitude may very well crack up the organization. In that event, Bellmar would presumably be interested in the Westmoreland County group.

By the way, the county conference would decide its champion on the basis of Gardner Points. For the next two years, teams would be required to play only three conference games. Thereafter the title would be based on five league tussles . . . Joel Walenta, all-Big Six lineman at Charleroi High, has been named North Charleroi's "most outstanding athlete" by the Toast-to-Our-Stars Club. He will be honored at the annual TTOS banquet on Thursday . . . There are reports that Hot Rod Hundley will turn down a chance to play with the Minneapolis Lakers in the NBA to barnstorm on his own. His recent tour coined almost $10,000.

Joe Beck Now Coaching in Virginia

Home for the Easter holidays was Joe Beck, former football star at Monessen High in 1941-43. Beck is now teaching and coaching both football and basketball at Hampton, Va., Junior High. His footballers won five of six games the past season . . . Mike Young, the Monessen slugger, came home last week when the Cincinnati Redlegs attempted to send him to a lower classification. The pay was so low that Young figured he'd be better off back in Monessen . . . The Derry-Unity Twp. Baseball League is trying something different this season. For the first time, umpires — as well as players — will come under the direct jurisdiction of the commissioner.

Gus Brickner, the cold water swimmer from Charleroi, has high hopes that the current fund-raising campaign will produce enough money to send him to Europe for a crack at the English Channel. The drive is off to a pretty good start. Gus hopes to leave the first week in July and train for at least four weeks in Europe before attempting to cross the Channel. Ordinarily swimmers challenge the choppy water early in August. Official Channel observers determine the exact date for each swim after checking on weather conditions.

Attempt New Marathon Bowling Mark

Raymond Carolla and Shamba LaTorre, a pair of Uniontown men who operate a produce stand on Route 51 near Sweeney's, will begin bowling next Monday in an effort to set a new rubberband duckpin marathon record. The old mark of 60 hours and eight minutes was established in 1953. Donations to the Dick Kadis fund will be collected during the marathon attempt, which will be staged at Jack Mier's Laurel Lanes in Uniontown . . . Mier, incidentially, is a former Monessen High athlete . . . Syracuse University netted about $71,000 from last year's Cotton Bowl after paying expenses which exceeded $70,000.

Frank Scrip Stops Greyhounds on Two Hits; Fans Twelve

California High handed Monessen its third straight Section 17 baseball setback yesterday, shading the Greyhounds, 4-1, at the Trojan diamond.

Frank Scrip, a junior southpaw, simply had too much stuff for the Hounds. He rationed two hits and fanned 12.

Myron Sepitko worked the route for Monessen, pitching a pretty good seven hitter.

The Trojans opened the scoring with a run in the first inning on a walk and successive errors.

In the second, the Trojans scored again as Allan Cairns reached first when hit by a pitched ball, moved to second on a ground out and tallied on Tom Mathews single.

California made it 3-0 in the third on back-to-back doubles by Ken Kulak and Ewing Bell.

Barton Doubles

Monessen broke into the scoring column in the fourth on a single by John Kaminsky and a double by Dan Barton.

That was the extent of the Monessen hitting for the day.

California added an insurance tally in the fifth on an error, followed by Carmen Quasanella's single.

The win was the second in three starts for the Trojans while Monessen absorbed its third loss in four outings.

Charleroi Tops Monongahela, 3-0

Charleroi High took firm control of the Section 17 baseball race yesterday behind the strong left arm of Carl Witmyer.

Witmyer blanked challenging Monongahela, 3-0, on one hit, while fanning eight.

As a result, the Charleroians now have a perfect season record of three wins and no losses.

No less than five major league scouts looked on as Witmyer authored his masterpiece at Charleroi. He had to be good, though, as his mound rival — Ed Kikla — yielded just three safeties while fanning ten.

The game was scoreless through four frames. Then the Charleroians exploded for three runs on one hit. Dave Felak opened with one of his two doubles. Joe Arrigo made first on a fielder's choice and John Lenhart walked to load the bases.

Kikla uncorked a wild pitch at that point, permitting one run to score. An error left in two more.

Fred Cox spoiled Witmyer's no-hit bid by doubling in the first inning.

It was Witmyer's fifth win over the Monongahelans in as many starts over the past three seasons.

Score by innings:

MFL Fund Drive Now Underway

Monessen's Midget Football League launched an ambitious drive yesterday for funds to finance construction of concession stands at Memorial Stadium.

MFL officials have set a minimum goal of $2000.

With the money, the league plans to improve concession facilities at the Stadium. In turn, it is hoped that concession revenues will be enough to pay for the costly MFL program in the future.

Alex Kachmarik, chairman of the fund drive, pointed out that this will probably be the last public solicitation in behalf of the league if the campaign goal is reached.

Self Sustaining

"We're asking the fans of Monessen to give the league a chance to be self-sustaining in the future," Kachmarik pointed out.

To dramatize the campaign, tags have been printed which carry the information that the holder has purchased a concrete block in the new stand. The brightly colored tags will sell for $1.

The public solicitation started today, particularly in the mills. Business and professional men will be contacted later.

Asked to Help

All city organizations will also be asked to assist in the project.

The money from the campaign will be used to purchase material only for the concession stand. It is hoped that all labor will be donated.

Durelle Upsets DeFendis; Wants Parker Next

NEW YORK (UP) — Yvon Durelle, a business-like fighter bent on making Canadian boxing history, headed for home and his fishing boat fleet in New Brunswick today, hopeful that a bout soon can be arranged with James J. Parker.

Durelle, using his greater ring experience and a stinging right hand as countering weapons, pounded out a majority 10-round decision over hard-hitting Angelo De Fendis of Brooklyn, N.Y., the 4-1 favorite, Monday night to boost his stock for a Canadian heavyweight title bout with champion Parker.

To beat De Fendis, a crude but explosive puncher, Durelle had to rely on all of his experience, plus an always ready right hand which sent the Brooklyn battler to the canvas in the fourth and staggered him in the later rounds.

Robinson Plans More Sparring

CHICAGO (UP)—Ray Robinson planned sparring sessions today and Wednesday at his training camp at Joe Louis Gymnasium in conditioning for his May 1 title fight with middleweight champion Gene Fullmer.

Robinson boxed four rounds Monday, flooring sparring partner Lee Williams with a right chop in the second round. Otis Woodard also worked two rounds with the former champ.

Bragan, Rigney in Blistering Feud

NEW YORK (UP)—Bill Rigney of the Giants and Bobby Bragan of the Pirates are a 'feudin' and a fightin' again.

A curt "to hell with him," directed by Rigney at Bragan when the Pittsburgh manager sought the use of the Polo Grounds for some post-game batting practice Monday, re-ignited the feud which has been going on since Bragan picked the Giants to finish last this spring.

Following Pittsburgh's 3-1 loss to the Giants Monday, Rigney received word in his clubhouse office that Bragan desired permission to use the field so that three of his players — Dick Groat, Paul Smith and Hank Foiles — could get in some extra batting licks.

"So we're a last-place club, eh?" Rigney snapped. "To hell with him. The answer is 'No.'"

Same Treatment

When Rigney's message was relayed back to Bragan, the Pittsburgh pilot declared:

"He can expect the same treatment when he comes to Pittsburgh. I have a feeling he's going to need extra batting practice worse than we will. And I still say he's going to finish last."

Meanwhile, back at the ranch . . . er . . . in the Giants' quarters, that is, Rigney somehow got word of Bragan's comment and said, "He's probably mad because he didn't think of it first."

In all his years as a manager, Bragan said he had never previously been refused permission to use a field for batting practice following a game.

"We asked the groundskeeper here and it was perfectly all right with him," said the Buccaneer boss. "I know what's bothering Rigney. He's teed off because I picked his club last and because he couldn't get in any infield practice when he opened the season in Pittsburgh."

On that occasion, so much time was alloted to the opening day ceremonies that it became a question of whether to cut the usual 40-minute pre-game batting practice for both clubs or to cancel infield practice entirely. Bragan decided to do away with the infield drill.

"He has nothing to squawk about on that score," Bragan said. "Neither club got to work out on the infield, but his club got the full 40 minutes to hit."

Bragan pointed out that the only manager whom he had ever known to refuse a rival club to use a field after a game was Casey Stengel of the Yankees. Stengel turned down such a request by Paul Richards to use Yankee Stadium when Richards was managing the White Sox in 1954. So Richards put his players in a taxi and took them over to the Polo Grounds.

Bellmar Host to Donora Today

Bellmar's baseballers will return to action today, playing host to Donora at the Fayette City diamond.

The Canes have won just one of three assignments this season, but they've looked good just the same. With some breaks, they could possibly have an unbeaten record at the moment.

There's a possibility the Bellmar boys will try to work in a postponed game with Monongahela tomorrow. On Thursday, they're scheduled to play host to Monessen.

Brtko Loses in Toronto Bout

TORONTO, Ont. (UP)—Toronto heavyweight George Chuvalo used a 14½ pound weight advantage to good effect Monday night in scoring a technical knockout over Emil Brtko of Pittsburgh at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Chuvalo, who weighed 207½ pounds, beat Brtko to his knees for a TKO at 1:52 of the second round of a scheduled eight-rounder.

The victory was the 19-year-old Chuvalo's seventh in eight fights. Brtko, 26, who weighed 193, now has a record of 22 triumphs in 27 bouts.

Gonsalves Quits Scheduled Bout In Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Johnny Gonsalves, 10th ranked lightweight from Oakland, Calif., withdrew Monday from a 10-round co-feature bout with Wayman Dawson scheduled for the Enright Theater May 6.

Gonsalves' manager wired promoter Ben Anolik that a physician had ordered the fighter to rest eight weeks. The telegram gave no details, but Gonsalves must file a medical report with the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission.

Gonsalves, who was to receive $1,750 for the bout, would have been the first ranking boxer to appear here since the Bob Baker-Hurricane Jackson fight last September.

Anolik said he would try to obtain Kenny Lane, ranked No. 2 challenger to lightweight champion Joe Brown, as Dawson's opponent.

The Gonsalves-Dawson bout had been coupled with a 10-rounder pairing middleweights Wilf Greaves of Pittsburgh and Johnny Neal of Milwaukee.

MHS Trackers Go To Donora Next

Monessen High's young track team will learn another valuable lesson tomorrow at Donora.

The Greyhound thinclads will compete in a triangular meet against the host Dragons and Charleroi.

Coach Cliff Jones, building for the future, will be satisfied if his boys finish a respectable third.

The meet is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p. m.

Bit the Hand . . .

NEW YORK (UP)—Patrolman Alfred Toetsld climbed down into a sewer Monday to rescue a dog trapped there. After considerable effort he finally snared the animal and handed it to the street. Then the dog bit him.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Keep Shots Low

The technique of keeping the ball low, except for keeping the head stationary, is in many respects the opposite of the method used for high hitting.

Position the ball back near the right foot. In line with the right heel is the positioning I use. You want the clubhead to contact the ball with a sharp, downward blow, don't you?

Close the blade of your club, cutting down on the face loft. Use a club with as small an amount of loft as is consistant with the distance required. To keep the ball very low, use one of your long irons and choke down on the grip to cut distance.

The follow-through must be low along the ground — but there must be a follow-through. Don't just stick the clubhead in the ground and quit on the shot.

The technique I am advising here is not for keeping shots low in the wind. This is an extreme method to use in an emergency, such as a low, overhanging limb.

MHS Netters Open Thursday

Begin Section 4 Tennis Campaign At Monongahela without Baker

Monessen High's tennis team will make its debut Thursday at Monongahela in the Section 4 opener.

The Greyhound netters will be coached this season by Antoinette Valentine, sister of Penn State's football All-American Sam Valentine.

Miss Valentine, who was in charge of the tennis program for the Recreation Department last summer, has selected three seniors and a junior to make the trip to Monongahela.

Heading the cast will be Joe Kurey, a junior who is also noted for his basketball exploits. Kurey is probably the finest schoolboy netter in the valley.

Other MHS Netters

Completing the Monessen varsity squad will be Dennis D'Alessio, Ron D'Angelo and George Selelyo. Both D'Alessio and D'Angelo saw lots of action last season, so they should know their way around in the current race.

Conspicuous by his absence will be Jim Baker, a junior who was the number two man on last year's team. Baker has improved tremendously since then and is a member of the current Pittsburgh squash team.

Baker decided not to go out for the MHS tennis team, preferring to devote full time to basketball.

Baker's decision was a severe blow since he teamed with Kurey to give the Greyhounds a fine doubles combination.

All WPIAL tennis events consist of five matches — three singles and two doubles.

Girls, Too!

Also traveling with the Monessen team this season will be Mary Katsuleris and her younger sister, Elizabeth. They will challenge girls from the respective schools.

Another Section 4 tussle on Thursday will send California to Charleroi.

According to pre-season dopesters, Monessen and California rank as early favorites. The Greyhounds, with Baker, were considered "shoo-ins". Without him it may be a different story.

Pirates Lose to Giants, 3 to 1; Kline Goes Today

NEW YORK (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, who have lost four of five games on their first eastern swing, call on righthander Ronnie Kline today to turn the tide.

Kline (0-1) was picked to start against the New York Giants in the last of their two-game series. Pete Burnside was the Giants' starter.

Kline, who has been having trouble recently with a leg muscle, started the second game of the Sunday doubleheader with Brooklyn but was lifted after a couple innings.

The Pirates had the pitching but not the hitting Monday when they lost to the Giants, 3-1.

Luis Arroyo, chunky southpaw who started for the Pirates, lost the game in the third. He walked Ruben Gomez, the opposing pitcher, with one out. Red Schoendienst got a scratch infield hit. Arroyo struck out Whitey Lockman, but Willie Mays homered into the upper deck for all the Giants' runs.

Catcher Hank Foiles homered for the Pirates in the fifth.

Manager Bobby Bragan fined catcher Danny Kravitz $10 Monday for missing a sign during the second game of the Sunday doubleheader in Brooklyn.

Kravitz was given the "take" sign on a first pitch but swung instead and singled to left field.

"I hated to do it," Bragan explained, "but I just had to fine him since we had spent so much time going over the signs before the game."

Yankees Crush Senators as Mantle Homers; Redlegs Win

By FRED DOWN

The man and the team who produced the top slugging heroics of 1956 are off and running at last today — at the expense of a pair of "jinx" pitchers.

Mickey Mantle, the American League's triple crown winner, connected for his first homer of the season Monday night as the New York Yankees crushed the Washington Senators, 15-6, with a 16-hit barrage. Mantle's blow came off southpaw Chuck Stobbs, who held Mickey to three singles in 27 official times at bat last season.

The Cincinnati Redlegs, meanwhile, finally scored their first victory of 1957 when they defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 10-6. The Redlegs had 14 hits and took advantage of six errors. In addition, they beat Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, who topped them five times last year.

Big Sixth Inning

Mantle's homer gave the Yankees a 2-0 third-inning lead and the world champions wrapped up their fourth win in five games with a seven-run outburst in the sixth which was featured by Hank Bauer's grand-slam and a triple steal with Billy Martin on the scoring end. Whitey Ford yielded two runs in seven innings before retiring and picked up his second straight victory over the Senators.

Ed Bailey and Johnny Temple had three hits each to pace the Redlegs' attack which exceeded the run production of their four previous losses. Tom Acker, third of four Cincinnati pitchers, gained credit for the win although Raul Sanchez finished up. Stan Musial collected four hits for the Cardinals for the second time in five games.

The unbeaten Milwaukee Braves ran their winning streak to five games with a 9-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs; the Brooklyn Dodgers downed the Philadelphia Phillies, 5-1, and Willie Mays' three-run homer gave the New York Giants a 3-1 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the other National League games. The Kansas City Athletics topped the Detroit Tigers, 11-7, and the Baltimore Orioles scored a 7-5 decision over the Boston Red Sox in the other American League action.

Errors Help Dodgers

Hank Aaron and Joe Adcock hit homers and Bill Bruton had three hits to lead a 10-hit Milwaukee attack that paved the way for Bob Buhl's first win. Bob Rush suffered his second straight setback of 1957. The Dodgers, opening their seven-game schedule in Jersey City, profited from three unearned runs as they won their fifth decision in six games. Roger Craig picked up the triumph although Clem Labine retired the last five batters. Ex - Giant Jim Hearn was the victim of Philadelphia's loose support.

Ruben Gomez made it two in a row this year with a neat six-hitter marred only by Hank Foiles' pop-fly homer. Mays' homer came off Luis Arroyo in the third inning and gave the Giant center fielder three for the young campaign.

The Athletics blew an early four-run lead, but rallied for four runs in the ninth on only two hits for their third win in six games. Harry Simpson and Lou Skizas homered for Kansas City while Bill Tuttle knocked in five Detroit runs with a three-run homer and two sacrifice flies.

Pinch-hitter Bob Hale's fifth-inning sacrifice fly and Willie Miranda's run-scoring single in the seventh gave the Orioles their victory margin over Boston's Tom Brewer. Mike Fornieles, who turned in 2 2-3 hitless innings of relief, gained credit for the victory.

St. Marcella Is Bowling Champ

St. Marcella won three straight games from St. Cecelia to earn the St. Leonard's Ladies League bowling title last night.

St. Marcella, the second half champ, had no trouble brushing aside the first half kings.

The annual league banquet will be held at the Ankara on May 1.

The complicated Page Bowling League playoff picture was untangled somewhat last night.

To begin with Stainless won two of three games from Electrical to decide their tie for first place in the final second half standings.

Then Mechanical No. 1 eliminated Cold Roll from the playoff picture with two straight wins. Mechanical will meet second place Electrical on Wednesday.

Scoring leaders include Frank Watson, 206-546; Francis Flanagan, 177-455; Steve Ruby (two games) 190-378; George Zilka (two games) 173-271.

Squares, Arches In Double Wins

Do Outboard Motors Really Scare Fish?

"Do outboard motors scare fish?"

Absolutely not, contends Richard Stroud, executive vice president of the Sport Fishing Institute. Contends Stroud:

"I think it is pretty clear that, based on scientific data available, here's absolutely no basis to indicate that outboard motors in any way harm our fish populations or their tendency to fight or stroke the angler's lure."

In this connection, the Texas Fish and Game Commission recently conducted tests which support Stroud's opinion. Skin divers were used to make under-water observations.

Texas Report

The Texas report stated:

"Surface noises apparently have little effect on fish at depths over 10 feet. A 10 horsepower outboard motor is used frequently in the diving areas while observations are in progress. No difference in numbers of fish seen or general activity can be seen during periods of extensive use of the motor and periods when the motor is not in use.

"On one occasion the boat was run at full speed back and forth over a test area. The fish in the area completely ignored the motor noise and continued normal activity. With the exception of a small whirring noise, no effect of the motor below 10 feet was noticeable. The skin-divers ranged in depth from three to 20 feet in an attempt to evaluate the motor effect. Near bank areas a definite water surge could be felt as deep as six feet each time the boat reversed the area."

Michigan Study

At the University of Michigan, Dr. Karl Lagler conducted an interesting study on outboards and fish.

The Michigan group took outboards, put them on the back of wood boats tied them by harness to posts in the middle of ponds and circled them for hours and hours, day after day. Then they checked the quality of fishing.

At the same time, they had nearby ponds that had no motors on them at all. They checked the fishing there and could find absolutely no difference in the quality of fishing.

Scientific studies have also indicated that other surface sounds have little effect on fish activity. Fish seem to completely ignore surface sounds such as movement of the boat, talking by helpers on the surface and even low flying aircraft.

When it can be done safely, a touch of the brake will often allow the moment needed for a bird or animal to clear the mechanical predator's path. Use of the horn will startle the endangered creature into hurrying to safety. At night, changing the light beam and sounding the horn usually does the trick.

However done, the saving of wild life on the highways is not alone humane. It also means more enjoyment and better hunting for Pennsylvania sportsmen in the future.

Tame Beavers—

"On March 25 another officer and I investigated a beaver damage complaint in Texas Township, Wayne County," says Game Protector Robert Zimmerman. "Two large flat tails came out of their house and swam about in the water not 25 feet from us. I never saw beavers so tame."

Ozarks to Drill At Ninth Street

The Monessen Ozarks will work out today at Ninth Street Park beginning at 5:45 p. m.

Manager Tony Mascetta said that the door is still open for any interested candidates to report for drills.

Mascetta disclosed that he will begin putting his players under contract today.

"We should have a few surprises," predicted the Ozark boss.

ave Wildlife

Rabbits, pheasants and quail, farm game species, have gone housekeeping in recent weeks. Coincident with their mating nesting activities large numbers of their lifeless bodies are being seen on or along highways, on "country" roads. Fast-moving automobiles on improved roads have made life increasingly uncertain for game birds as well as earthbound species.

Actually a hen pheasant, killed in spring or early summer means the loss of a nest of eggs or chicks. Motorists are cautioned, therefore, to be on the alert for wildlife crossing the road or along the farm.

Members are also asked to contribute clean used clothing or miscellaneous articles such as wash cloths to make bed socks, tooth brushes, cards, magazines or games to be taken to the Westmoreland County Home.

This project has been underway for several months, however, Mrs. George Wenick, public welfare chairman, expects to make one more trip to the home before the club year ends and requests that any contribution be brought to her home or she be called to pick up the needed articles. Youth's Leg Is Bitten by Shark Off Florida Coast

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. (UP)—Michael Carpenter, 17, was severely bitten on the left leg by a shark Monday while swimming some 75 yards from shore north of here.

The boy, vacationing here with his parents from Monterey Park, Calif., was pulled from the surf by a lifeguard and rushed to the Ormond Beach Osteopathic Hospital. He was listed in fair condition.

Lifeguard Gordon Foote said Carpenter told him he saw the dorsal fin, body and open mouth of the shark before it struck him. The boy estimated the fish was about 13 feet long.

The muscles, bones and tendons of the youth's left leg above the ankle were mangled, doctors said. They said the boy lost a lot of blood.

Authorities said it was the first case they could recall of a fish attacking a human in about two years

Bill to Permit Individuals to Sue the State

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader said today legislation to allow individuals to sue the Commonwealth for negligence will be sent to the General Assembly this week.

The governor said the bill would enable the state "to live up to a moral responsibility." Persons injured or suffering property damage caused by negligence on the part of the state would be able to sue for damages under terms of the legislation. Presently there is no statute covering the losses.

"There are dozens of cases where persons have been injured through the negligence of the state," Leader said. "In some cases, these claimants have tried to collect damages from the state through special legislation. The governor is in the difficult position of having to veto this sort of bill because the Constitution prohibits enactment of special legislation for relief of a particular person."

The legislation specifies that all suits brought against the state be heard before a judge sitting without a jury. Claims of less than $1,000 would be handled by "administrative adjustments" by the state Justice Department.

A Slow Burn

DURHAM, England (UP) — Thirty years ago a group of miners at the Greenside Colliery were brewing tea far underground. The gas burner they were using tipped over and started a fire. Monday, miners making a periodic check of the area, reported the fire finally had burned out.

Cincinnati Paper Increases Price

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UP)— The Cincinnati Enquirer blamed rising costs today for raising its price to seven cents a copy.

The price hike became effective on daily copies yesterday. However, Sunday editions remained the same price, 20 cents.

Enquirer officials cited higher newsprint cost and wage adjustments as the main causes for the price hike.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. John Heming, who died 27 years ago today, April 23, 1930.

Gone into the light that shineth so far,
Gone from this earth of sorrow and care,
Rest, dear those hands that did their best,
God's dear mother, gone to rest.
What is a gift without our mother?
What are all the joys we meet?
We miss the loving smile no longer
Greets the sound of our feet.
Dearest mother, how we miss you
Since you left us for a while,
But we hope to meet you in heaven
And there forever more to smile.

Sadly missed, Daughter Mrs. Amanda Durstine and grandchildren, Mary, Abraham and George.

Nursing Homes Can Now Get Public Assistance

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Justice Department today ruled public assistance payments may be made directly to sectarian and denominational nursing homes on behalf of patients entitled to Commonwealth financial support.

A formal opinion was issued at the request of Ruth Gregg Horting, state public assistance secretary, who questioned the legality of direct payments in view of possible unconstitutionality.

The opinion, after citing several court cases, said the previous rulings "permit payments by a governmental body in pursuance of a governmental function on behalf of and for the benefit of specified individuals to sectarian or denominational institutions on the theory that such payments are payments to the individual."

The opinion said direct payments would not violate the state Constitution and advised the department to make the payments at the request of needy persons applying for financial assistance for nursing home care.

Net Working Capital Up

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government reports that net working capital of U S corporations at the end of 1956 totaled a record $108,200,000,000

The Securities & Exchange Commission said Sunday night this was a net increase of $5,300,000,000 in the year, resulting from a rise of $10,500,000,00 in current assets and an increase of $5,200,000,000, in liabilities.

The report, which included all corporations except banks and insurance companies, also said corporations have [illegible] a record $29,800,000,000 in plants and equipment last year. This record outlay has been one of the big factors in keeping the national economy on a high level.

James Dean Legend Widely Exaggerated

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—The legend of the late James Dean, according to a couple of tourists in Hollywood, has been exaggerated and at times just isn't true.

The visitors, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Winslow of Fairmont, Ind., spoke as they began a tour of Warner Studio, unnoticed by the other out-of-towners inspecting the film factory.

Aline Mosby

But to the quiet, reserved Winslows it was a special trip, for they were seeing for the first time the working place of Dean, the boy they brought up in Indiana after his mother died and his father moved to California.

"Oh, the things we've read about Jimmy," said Winslow, shaking his head. "One story said the headstone on his grave had been chipped. Not a word of truth in it.

Jimmy Not "Rebellious"

"The headstone is just as nice as when it was new. We read they carry pieces of the grave away but they don't. A very high class of people visit his grave. Around Jim's grave is a path four feet wide, worn out plumb around, and you know how high the grass grows in Indiana!"

"They keep saying Jimmy was 'rebellious,'" his wife, Hortense, said.

"Jimmy actually was the type who just gets out and does things himself. He knew what he wanted and he went out and got it. I've never known anybody so determined.

One account of Dean's life the Winslows call authentic, however, is a documentary movie, "The James Dean Story," which will be released soon. They attended a preview of the picture and "it brought back such memories," Mrs. Winslow sighed.

The Winslows have a 350-acre farm, and Mrs. Winslow has to keep a 15-room home, but they also are saddled with the job of answering questions about Dean. About 100 people visit the James Dean Foundation Museum in Fairmont daily, they said, and many of these visitors go to the Winslow home to see where Jimmy lived.

Legend "Amazing"

"They want to see Jim's pictures and scrapbook and talk to us," Mrs. Winslow said. "They want to know what Jimmy was like."

The Dean legend is "amazing" to the Winslows. They also see no signs of its dying down. They still get stacks of letters daily from all over the world.

"The first year we answered all the letters but now we can't," Winslo said. "Many come in foreign languages and we can't translate them. We just don't have time.

"Some boys want to work on the farm for nothing. Many people write letters of what an inspiration Jimmy was to them, showing them you can get out and do what you want."

Winslow added, "we've met so many wonderful people through this that we never would have known otherwise. Of course, I hate to have it happen this way."

Dislikes Way His Name Is Listed

ST. LOUIS (UP) — Attorney John F. Molloy objects to the way Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has his name listed in the new directory.

He says the "atty" designation following his name makes it read: "Molloy, John F atty" and it looks suspiciously like "fatty."

In a letter requesting that "something be done about it," Molloy also expressed sympathy for attorneys whose middle initial is "R."

Your Health—

Ways to Determine if Medicines Still Useful

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

I've repeatedly urged you to get rid of all the old medicines you may have about the house, for it is important that you do. Some drugs become stronger with age, others lose much or all of their potency.

But, chances are, many of you are holding on to those assorted bottles stuffed in your medicine chest while trying to remember just how long you have had them.

If you don't remember when you got a specific medicine, get rid of it right away.

But if you are wondering whether a fairly recent purchase might have lost its effectiveness, there are a few ways of determining how potent it is simply by its appearance.

Tablets which have started to crumble should be tossed out. Salves and ointments are ready for the ashcan when they become dark, separate or acquire watery spots.

Keep solutions only as long as they remain clear. Get rid of them when they change color or you can see residue in the bottle.

Some germicidal disinfectants retain their strength as long as the bottle lasts; other types deteriorate each time the bottle is opened.

But whether a certain drug looks good or not, if there is no label on the bottle or container, throw it away. Don't trust your memory.

While you're cleaning out the medicine cabinet, I suggest you disinfect it at the same time. You can clean and disinfect in a single operation by using a mixture of 2½ tablespoons of a germicidal disinfectant, such as lysol, in one gallon of water.

One more thing before you leave the medicine cabinet.

On the inside of the door tape the name, address and phone number of your doctor and your druggist. Then they'll always be handy when you need them.

Frogs Will Be Frogs

BRENTWOOD, Md. (UP) — City officials are deciding whether to blow the whistle on a crowd of frogs.

Fortunately for the croakers, the mayor of this Washington suburb is something of a frog fan.

But Mrs. Mary Harman despises them with an abiding fervor. Possibly she has good reason. She lives next door to a frog pond.

Mrs. Harman sought to strike a blow at her foes with a nighttime complaint to the police. She told the desk sergeant the frogs were "hollering and carrying on" outside her bedroom window.

"Check disorderly frogs at 1512 38th Place," the sergeant radioed to a police cruiser.

Police arrived too late. Stars flickered over the pool and a warm breeze brushed the reeds along the bank. But the party was over. They didn't catch one frog carrying on.

"Frogs quiet at this time," reported police in the cruiser. "Advise complainant to see the mayor."

But what Mrs. Harman apparently needed was not the mayor, but someone with a pump.

Doris M Cochran, amphibian curator at the Smithsonian Institution, said anyone trying to hush a frog in the springtime is fighting nature. She said this is the frog mating season. And frogs will be frogs.

"The male is calling the female and establishing his territory," she said. "The only way to stop the calling is drain the pond."

Brentwood Mayor William H. Smith said he knew that, but didn't think much of it.

"I don't want to extinguish them," he said. "I think there is nothing nicer than having a bunch of frogs to go to sleep by."

State to Get Less Wheat Allotment

By UNITED PRESS

Pennsylvania's share of the 1958 national wheat acreage allotment is 587,517 acres of the national total of 55 million acres, a drop of more than 13-thousand acres from the 1957 share of 600,754 acres.

This was announced by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T Benson who also listed the 1958 national average support price for the 1958 wheat crop as $1.78 a bushel.

The price of 22 cents lower than the support price for the 1957 and 1956 crops and reflects 75 per cent of parity.

However, the 1958 support price is contingent upon results of a growers referendum June 20. The new support price is expected to be approved in the balloting

First Broiler Week

The state's first Broiler Week has been scheduled by the poultry growers for the week of May 4 to move an anticipated abundant supply of young chickens to dinner tables and backyard barbecues.

A highlight of "Broiler Week" will be the finals of the 11th annual Junior Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest. Contest officials reported nearly 700 young poultrymen have entered the contest which is a statewide educational project in broiler production techniques.

There will be six regional contests throughout the state with final judging the following day at the Farm Show building at Harrisburg.

May — the prize birds will go on auction at Altoona, Butler, Coatesville, Franconia, Fredericksburg and Sunbury.

State wide hatchery activity, as reported by a poultry official, indicates that broiler supplies may exceed the normal available supplies of one million broilers a week.

The object of the Broiler Week is to emphasize the importance of the 26 million dollar broiler industry in the state's economy.

Soybean Silage

A soybean sorgo silage mixture is gaining popularity with Pennsylvania farmers, a Penn State University extension expert reported, but he recommends certain varieties for different sections of the state.

Soybeans recommended for northern sections: Lincoln or Hawkeyep central, Wabash; Southeastern, Wabash or Black Wilson, and recommended sorgo types are Atlas for southeastern state farms and Black Amber elsewhere throughout the state.

A warning note by the experts said that the mixture should not be grown on a soil subject to washing unless contour planting is used.

New Theory Claims Cancer Is Another Deficiency Disease

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP)—Because the formulation of a sound theory capable of explaining known facts often has led to extremely important scientific discoveries, it is of interest that a new theory proposes that cancer is a deficiency disease.

Interest is sharpened by the fact that this theory was formulated at the same time but independently by Drs. L. A. Erf and B. J. Miller of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, and by Dr. Edwin E. Osgood of the University of Oregon Medical School, Portland.

Erf, Miller and Osgood theorized that the deficiency was in whatever substances cause new body cells to mature and take up their vital roles in body chemistry. Such substances except in one instance, are not now known to exist; the theorizers proposed that they do exist.

Studied Pernicious Anemia

Erf, Miller and Osgood took pernicious anemia as a theoretical base. There was a time when it was considered a form of cancer, since it was marked by uncontrolled multiplication of immature red blood cells and as a disease it was uniformly fatal.

Then it was discovered it was a deficiency disease—the deficiency being in vitamin B12 which is the essential substance that matures red blood cells. No one need die of pernicious anemia now but all victims must be given vitamin B12 regularly to supply their own deficiency.

Erf, Miller and Osgood proposed that the maturing substances of cells could be many and varied and differ from cell-type to cell-type. They both proposed that these substances could originate inside the cell or could reach the cell from the outside by way of the blood and other body fluids.

In either case, cancer would represent a disruption in supply and distribution. The causes of disruption could be many. This would explain why cancer has so many forms and appearances. The pointing of both theorizers was toward more research in the subtle chemistry of normal cells. This would mean a change of emphasis in cancer research which now accents the study of cancerous and other abnormal cells.

Uncontrolled Multiplication

Basically cancer is an uncontrolled multiplication of primitively immature undifferentiated cells. As Erf and Miller pointed out in stating the theory in the technical journal of the American Academy of General Practice, it is only necessary for one cell to become cancerous "to eventually cause the death of the organism."
